The Hunter Group Seeking The Mosaic Youth Theatre of Detroit's New Executive Director

May 17, 2017 – Executive search firm, The Hunter Group, has been retained by The Mosaic Youth Theatre of Detroit to lead the search for its new executive director. For the last 25 years, Rick Sperling has served as the organization's president and founder and will remain as Artistic Director in the organization's new co-leadership structure. The organization hopes to have a new leader in place by the end of this summer.

The executive director post at Mosaic reports to the organization's board of directors, serves as an ex-officio member of the board, and works closely with its senior leadership team. The next executive director will inherit a talented and committed team of artistic, youth development, and administrative leaders, and will be expected to put in place the administrative systems and structures that will best support high level thinking, and better leverage Mosaic's many assets.

The new leader will encourage collaboration among Mosaic's senior leadership and will ensure a stable and productive relationship within the community and other arts organizations. In addition to a passion for the performing arts and appropriate administrative/management experience, the successful candidate will be an enterprising leader who puts the success and well-being of young people above all else, and deeply values Mosaic's transformational impact on young aspiring artists and performing arts audiences around the globe.

Mosaic Youth Theatre of Detroit is one of Southeast Michigan's most highly regarded cultural treasures.

Its critically acclaimed youth-driven performances and national and international tours have brought worldwide attention to Detroit as a center for arts and culture while shining a spotlight on the area's talented young people and creating new and diverse audiences for the performing arts.

Founded by Rick Sperling in 1992 to address gaps in Metro Detroit arts education, Mosaic served 25 young artists in its inaugural year. Today, hundreds of youth from more than 50 Metro Detroit schools participate in Mosaic's First, Second and Main Stage programs every year.

These innovative programs provide expert training, mentoring and opportunity to the area's young actors, singers, and stage technicians, while fostering a culture of high expectations, active participation and acceptance that serves them beyond the stage.
